Tom Higdon, Lemon Grove schools' music director, receives honor

Lemon Grove music director, Tom Higdon, has been selected as "Teacher of the Year" for 1989-90 for his exemplary performance. Each year, for the past five years, the Lemon Grove School District principals have presented their nominees for this prestigious award.

Mr. Higdon, who grew up in Lemon Grove and attended Golden Avenue School and Lemon Grove Middle School himself, has been the music director for the district schools, as well as teaching band and orchestra students at Lemon Grove Middle School. The numerous music enrichment programs provided for the Lemon Grove community annually are only a small part of the schedule that Lemon Grove music students maintain. Each year, under his instruction, both band and orchestra students continue to place high in competition during band and orchestra festivals and ensemble festivals.

The Lemon Grove Middle School Band, that is so often seen marching on School Lane, has placed as high as first in the Annual Maytime Band Review that includes bands from all over California.

The numerous parades and performances provide an opportunity to see the results of a director who cares about his students and the community they represent.

The Lemon Grove Middle School congratulates Mr. Higdon in receiving the "Teacher of the Year" Award. He has shown dedication and motivation in his commitment to bring a good music program to the community. Representing East County in competition, the Lemon Grove music students shine brightly with outstanding performances of which we all can be very proud.

Bates announces deadline for academy applicants

Representative Jim Bates of San Diego announced a deadline of November 17, 1989, for high school students living in the 44th Congressional District to submit applications for nomination to the United States Service Academies.

Applicants for the class entering July, 1990, must be United States citizens, between the ages of 17 and 21 by July 1, 1990, and single with no dependents.

Applications for the Air Force (Colorado Springs, Colorado);

Naval (Annapolis, Maryland); Military (West Point, New York); and Merchant Marine (Kings Point, New York) Academy will be screened by a panel from the 44th Congressional District for nomination by Congressman Bates.

Interested students are encouraged to contact Kerri Benson Tweed at the San Diego office at 287-8851 or write: Congressman Jim Bates, 3450 College Ave., Suite 220, San Diego, Ca. 92115.

Coadjutor Bishop Robert H. Brom, Msgr. Raymond Kirk, pastor, and former pastors Msgr. Patrick J. Kearney and Msgr. Raymond Moore concelebrated a Mass of thanksgiving on October 29th, at the 50th anniversary celebration at St. John of the Cross parish.

Bishop Brom told the 1,000 persons crowded into the church that he was "happy to begin his ministry in a parish setting and especially this parish...."

The parish's two English and one Spanish choir provided music for the bilingual liturgy. Following the Mass, there was a dinner at the Knights of Columbus hall.

Grove Meandering

By Fran Rottet

The banner is up at the corner of Broadway and Lemon Grove Avenue, heralding the annual Christmas Fair for St. Philip's Episcopal Church, at the corner of Palm and Hardy.

Gift ideas, baked goods and holiday decorations will be displayed Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m.-7 p.m. Be sure to stop by and buy!

Did you mark the calendar for the Annual Craft Fair at Skyline Wesleyan Church, 1345 Skyline Drive, Lemon Grove? November 17, 5-9 p.m., and November 18, 9 a.m.-3 p.m., are the dates and times. All proceeds go toward Mission Projects and the public is invited.

Official Ribbon Cutting Ceremonies were held last Friday at Lemon Grove Plaza. I wasn't able to stroll through the stores until Saturday afternoon, but there was plenty going on.

Some vintage cars were on display; there was live music during the day and all kinds of flyers and leaflets handed out to shoppers as they moved from store to store. What a terrific addition to our community!

During the week, I saw quite a bit of activity between the eastern and western corner at Broadway and Lemon Grove Avenue. By Saturday evening, the building which housed Medic Pharmacy was bare to the walls, and the Lemon Grove Rexall Drugs building is re-stocked. Looks like the familiar name will be retained, but I have been unable to verify this.

At any rate, if you've been shopping at the drug store on the west side of the tracks, you can still do so.

How many of you dine at Heidi's on Broadway, visit the local library, bank at Imperial Savings & Loan, patronize Bernadine's Hair World, or worship at the United Congregational Church of Christ Church on Glebe Road?

The Lemon Grove Art Association wants everyone to know that the paintings you see displayed at these establishments are painted and displayed by members of the Lemon Grove Art Association.

The Board of Directors of the Art Association wants to thank these fine establishments for furnishing them space to display the work and invite you to enjoy the paintings the next time you visit.

All the ghost and goblins have left the area now and work is underway to transform the interior of the Crocker Bank Building into an interesting forest of Christmas trees and holiday decorations.

Activity continues at 7890 Broadway. A banner tells us that carpets and draperies will soon be available here. The corner is almost complete at Empire Beauty Supply and a whole storefront is underway for 7898 Broadway.

What a difference a day makes, eh? In this case, what a difference time makes. Our downtown area just keeps getting better and better.

If you have news items for the Lemon Grove Review, questions or concerns within the community, or need information, call me at 464-4274 between noon and 3 p.m., Tuesday through Friday. I'll try to help or find someone who can.

Highway Patrol officers honored

Seven El Cajon California Highway Patrol officers were honored recently by the Automobile Club of Southern California for their success in recovering stolen vehicles and arresting suspects.

Gary Clasen, manager of the Club's Grossmont district office, joined with chief Clarence Tuck and assistant chief Richard Lane to present the "10851 Award" certificates and pins to Traffic Officers Judy Brown, William Kirby, Robert McLean and David Larson during the 10:30 a.m. training day at the El Cajon CHP office. Officers John Sjursen, David Marriott and Thomas Lackey also earned the award but were unable to attend the ceremony. The "10851 Award" gets its name from the California Vehicle Code section that prohibits the theft of vehicles.

Last year, the Stolen Vehicle Information System in Sacramento reported more than 260,000 vehicles stolen in California, representing $890 million in losses. Law enforcement agencies are now realizing an 89.1 percent recovery factor.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

You can't believe everything you read in the newspapers.

Add to that the adage that a picture is worth 1,000 words.

To make the point, in Sunday's newspaper, taking a good part of the comic pages, was an American flag in full color.

There, in the center of a Doonesbury panel, was the flag, with comments by the capable, waspish cartoonist, Gary Trudeau. He made cogent points with his warning about George Bush's proposed constitutional amendment which would control the disposal of an American flag.

His characters at the edge of the panel noted almost any disposition of the comic page's flag would violate Mr. Bush's proposal.

"You can't use the paper to line a bird cage or train a puppy," he said, calling it desecration.

Throwing it in the garbage, "ditto."

"No using it to start a fire in the fireplace—that's flag burning," he noted.

Trudeau's cartooning makes a painful point as he does so frequently.

We know flag desecration is wrong but as it is with so many laws that we labor under, we became law-breakers of the very laws enacted to protect us.

An indication of the fall-out of such laws came from some material I have researched in a study from the Heritage Foundation of Washington.

Heritage reported several months ago that the city of Oakland, California had enacted a law that requires a local resident, Glen Dahlbacka to change his profession or leave town, although he has two years to choose his fate.

Dahlbacka, you see, is a physicist consultant, who does nothing more than sell his scientific knowledge to those who require such help.

His crime, according to Oakland authorities, is that he is violating Oakland's nuclear-free zone laws, which are similar to those enacted by approximately 150 other U.S. communities.

But Oakland's law is far more onerous than in other communities. The law, passed in a referendum last year, declares all nuclear weapons' work (including work on non-nuclear components and devices for transporting, guiding and triggering such weapons) is to be barred from the city.

Dahlbacka and other scientists who work on classified nuclear projects are required to file a report with the city and to post a sign at his home declaring "Nuclear weapons work conducted here."

The city also bars itself from investing in or buying goods or services from firms or persons it identifies as being in the nuclear weapons component service or manufacturing business.

Interestingly, the Department of Energy's main office for the coordination of nuclear work is in Oakland.

It appears that as cities and states develop such controls, they are compromising foreign policy, an area in which it is crucial to have a strong, centralized federal oversight.

Fallout in Oakland, if the law is fully implemented, includes the banning of the city doing business with AT&T, Dupont, General Electric, General Motors, Ford Motors and IBM.

Other foreign policy regulations adopted by local laws are Baltimore, Seattle and a host of other U.S. cities with "sister cities" in communist Nicaragua and who send economic assistance to the government there.

A Minneapolis ordinance restricts city investment from firms doing business in Northern Island, and Massachusetts tried to pass a similar law. Michigan tried to ban city investment in firms doing business in the Soviet Union.

Some cities have passed laws mandating divestment from companies doing business in South Africa through existing federal sanctions required nothing of the sort.

While there is plenty of room for conflicting views on foreign policy, only the federal government should set such laws.

Even so, much foolishness becomes part of such laws—regulations that had not been thoroughly thought out.

Certainly, American flag desecration should not be tolerated, but consecrating a comic page picture is senseless.

All of which goes to indicate that the Constitution, regardless of its age, is still viable.

It is those who have amended it that have made some regulations absurd.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

Hard work never hurt anyone?

We have all heard the expression, "Hard work will never hurt anyone."

In my younger days, I was always guilty of long days of hard manual labor. Because I was always a big hulk of a guy, everyone called on me to: "Lift that barge, tote that bale, you're so strong, not weak and pale." To prove my strength, I would accommodate and lift almost anything.

Those many years of abuse to my body has finally taken its toll. Some of my parts have worn out already, and some have been replaced, now ready for their "1000 mile check-up." If I would have only known that I was going to live this long, I would have lubed my parts more often.

I wish I had as much pep and drive as some of the celebrities: Bob Hope, George Burns, or Don Ameche, just to mention a few; all in their 80's or 90's and still going strong. I would bet that not one of those famous men ever had a hammer or a shovel in their "lily whites." None of them have to work now for financial reasons, but just to keep cobwebs out of their minds. That goes to prove that it's "mind over body" and the secret of longevity is to keep your mind busy and the body will thrive.

Why do women live so much longer than men? Is it because they tend to keep their minds busier than men? Was it because Adam gave his best rib to create woman? Was it the fact that Eve was the first "health nut" by eating apples, even the one that was forbidden? Was it because the "women of old" did all the chores while the men hunted for food? Whatever the reason, women have evolved to be the stronger sex.

My life has always been such a whirlwind of business and extra-curricular activities that it seemed like there were never enough hours in the day. My best productivity was during those hectic times. My worst days were after my disability, just lying around the house feeling sorry for myself.

After a couple of years of "brain sleep," I went back to college, due to the urging of my son, Dannie. Now a whole new life has emerged for me. Thank God and Dannie for helping me remove some of the cobwebs from my brain. So now writing with my word processor that Dan built for me, and some church activities, I am keeping the mind busy again and have left the old, tired body to try and keep up.

Sports Commentary

By John E. Wirges

Playing for Big Bucks

Do the homework after dark. Use all your daylight hours for baseball practice. Get your son out in the backyard and play catch or hold a little batting practice every day after school and all day on weekends. Help him get started on his professional career. There's big money in baseball.

Not even counting those who were close, and there were bunches of them, 106 major league players made $1 million or more in baseball earnings last year; 20 made more than $2 million.

You can read figures like those and they don't register. Just how much is $1 million, anyway?

Glad you asked. It's a ton of money.

Just supposing you earned $10 an hour and you worked an average of 40 hours per week. Counting all 52 weeks in each year, it would take you 48 years and 7 months to earn $1 million.

And 106 ball players make that much or more in just 9 months of work on salary alone. Many of them make half that much again in non-baseball pursuits such as endorsements, baseball card shows, personal appearances, advertising and licensing fees.

There are 3 separate categories of players who climb into the $1 million salary level. Consistent, winning pitchers, highly talented and productive position players and those who work long and hard with such dedication, they rise above their limited talents to achieve stardom.

Pitchers Frank Viola of the New York Mets and Orel Hersher of the Los Angeles Dodgers earned the top bucks in the National League last year with salaries of $2,766,667 each.

All-around superstar infielder Carl Ripken, Jr. of the Baltimore Orioles leads the American League in earnings last season with $2,466,667.

Jack Clark earned an even $2 million to pace Padres employees. Tony Gwynn, who won his 3rd straight National League batting title, earned $1,131,667. He was 4th best on the Padres payroll behind Clark and pitchers Bruce Hurst ($1,733,333) and Eric Show ($1,450,000). Pitcher Eddie Lee Whitson joined the millionaire's club with $1,050,000.

The Padres' player payroll totaled $12,944,000 to place 15th in the major league salary derby. They were just about in the middle of the payroll parade, but that figures to change if they are successful in re-signing Mark Davis and inking free agent pitcher Mark Langston to a Padres contract.

Pitching aside, the big money goes to big boppers and consistent high average hitters. You can't teach hitting with power or pitching to the talentless, but you can improve your batting average with dedication and practice.

The difference between a .250 and a .350 batting average is about 60 hits a year. That's just 2.4 more hits a week over the 6 months of the major league season.

A drag bunt here and well-placed single there makes all the difference in the world. And you can sharpen the skills required for that with practice, with working at putting the ball in play. Sounds simple, doesn't it?

But it works. Ask Tony Gwynn or Pete Rose, or any of the millionaire high-average hitters.

So get out there you dads. Play ball with your sons. It's great fun and who knows. It could be the start of something big.

Spaying, neutering pets prevents animal neglect

To help dog and cat owners spay or neuter their pets at reduced fees, the Coalition for Pet Population Control has organized a list of veterinarians who are lowering their spay/neuter fees throughout the month of November, "Spay/Neuter Month."

"Pet owners simply call 294-PETS to find a veterinarian in their local community who's participating in this special program," stated Coalition Chair Sally Hazzard. The program was established with the cooperation of the San Diego County Veterinary Medical Association.

"The Coalition for Pet Population Control wants dog and cat owners to know the benefits, as well as the importance, of spaying and neutering," said Hazzard. Hazzard, who is the director of the San Diego County Department of Animal Control, explained that the Coalition consists of thirteen animal agencies throughout the county.

According to the Coalition, a pet who's been altered is less likely to roam away from home to search for a mating partner. Additionally, spayed and neutered pets are less susceptible to acquiring various health complications involving reproductive organs.

Although the Coalition's member agencies are unrelated, serving various parts of the county with different services and programs, each one is dedicated to controlling pet overpopulation throughout San Diego County.

"Pet overpopulation is a serious concern to us," Fred Lee, executive director of the San Diego Humane Society & S.P.C.A., explained, "because an animal born unwanted faces such a large chance of suffering neglect, abuse or abandonment." He added, "And there simply are not enough loving homes in San Diego County for all the animals that are born here."

For additional information about spaying or neutering, the Coalition for Pet Population Control suggests a pet owner contact his or her veterinarian, local humane society or department of animal control, or call 294-PETS.

On Saturday evening members will have the privilege of listening to the first resident pastor of the church, Rev. W. LeRoy Elster, speak to them on "About Sheep and Shepherds" at a dinner in the Lemon Grove Masonic Temple. Special music, remarks by the current president of the congregation, Lee Selvig, an invocation by pastor emeritus, A.R.H. Johnson, a walk down the 40 years of memories with Lillian Collette, their only woman president and closing remarks by the Rev. E.J. Volkmann will mark the evening.

The Rev. Hardis C. Bakken, whose dream for the present church materialized during 1963 with its dedication, will give the sermon at the celebratory 9 a.m. services on Sunday, November 12. Former presidents of the church will carry the banners in procession, the Bell Choir and other choirs will provide special music and new doors and a set of carillons will be dedicated.

Following the services a reception will be held in Luther Hall so that members and friends may renew acquaintances and reminisce.

Pictures taken and scrapbooks assembled over the 40-year period will be displayed for people to browse through.

The local church is located at 2055 Skyline Drive, Lemon Grove.

Barone was presented her certificate by NSTA President Dr. Hans O. Andersen along with 66 other San Diego-area teachers. The teachers were among 100 elementary school teachers participating in the second year of a three-year UCSD institute funded in part by a $940,000 grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF). The institute is designed to develop a cadre of 100 elementary school teachers who will serve as leadership/resource teachers in their respective school districts. Each year of the three-year program includes an intensive summer study at UCSD followed by eight meetings during the academic year. ## Long term side effects of cancer survivors discussed at symposium

A nine-year-old former leukemia patient sits in his classroom in a suburban Arizona school, staring into space. The teacher, unaware of his former battle with cancer, has seen this behavior so often she just ignores him.

This child is part of a growing group of survivors of childhood leukemia. In 1967, the average survival rate for the disease was 15%. Today it is 65%.

"The Survivorship Movement," a result of the increasing number of cancer survivors and their unique problems, was one of the topics discussed at the Ninth Annual Cancer Symposium for Nurses sponsored by the Stevens Cancer Center of Scripps Memorial Hospitals.

The symposium was held October 30th through November 1st at the Sheraton Harbor Island East in San Diego in conjunction with the 13th Annual Symposium for Physicians.

"Our message is that there can be quality living after cancer," said Susan Leigh, R.N., a sur-vivorship consultant to the Arizona Cancer Center. "We want to provide information and assistance for the special problems people who have had cancer may face," said Leigh.

The difficulties range from the emotional and physical side effects of cancer and therapy to job discrimination and difficulty obtaining medical insurance.

The nine-year-old who didn't pay attention in school, according to Ki Moore, R.N., D.N., Sc., assistant professor at the University of Arizona College of Nursing, was diagnosed with acute leukemia at the age of three. He had extensive radiation therapy, chemotherapy and three years of maintenance drug therapy.

"In school, the boy had problems with paying attention, memory and visual skills," said Moore. "The teacher was at a loss as how to deal with him so she just let him sit."

"The real problem was he probably couldn't even remember what he was supposed to do," said Moore.

Help finally came when a nurse met with the teacher and talked about strategies for improving his classroom skills including his need for special education.

Children who are considered cured of leukemia—those who remain disease-free five years following therapy—are ten times more likely to face cancer again than other children their age. Long-term effects of treatment may appear months or years later, according to Moore.

These effects, in addition to the risk of developing other cancers, may include diminished IQ's, specific learning disabilities, growth deficiencies, metabolic problems, reproductive system abnormalities and impaired immunity.

In addition, after a patient is "cured," can be an especially frightening time since many of the initial support systems are gone.

For more information, call the Stevens Cancer Center of Scripps Memorial Hospitals at 457-6756.

Joe Freed on the movies

Film Preview: 1990
Part Two—Thrillers

"Narrow Margin"—Veteran suspense-actor Gene Hackman stars as a Los Angeles lawyer who is sent to Canada to retrieve a witness in a mob murder trial. A great deal of the film takes place during his return to the states while protecting the witness, played by "Fatal Attraction's" Ann Archer, from mob hit-men. The action surrounds their train ride through the Canadian Rocky Mountains and director Peter Hyams, ("The Presidio") has said that the film is a homage to old-fashioned murder-mysteries, many of which took place aboard trains. Tri-Star Pictures.

"Internal Affairs"—Andy Garcia, of the recent "Black Rain" is an investigator for the Internal Affairs Department of the Los Angeles Police Department. Assigned to probe his fellow officers for incidents of corruption, Garcia finds himself a very unpopular fellow, and his life is soon in jeopardy. "Internal Affairs" also stars Richard Gere as one of the corrupt after Garcia's life, and Nancy Travis is the love interest. Paramount.

"Frankenstein Unbound"—Combining the concept of time travel with the 19th century classic horror by Mary Shelley, "Frankenstein Unbound" follows the adventures of 21st century scientist Jeremy Irons, ("Dead Ringers"), as he travels back in time to discover that Dr. Frankenstein was no work of fiction. Bridget Fonda ("Scandal") co-stars as Mary Shelley, with Raul Julia ("Moon over Parador") as the lunatic doctor. 20th Century Fox.

"The Guardian"—A young working couple doesn't have time to care for their newborn child, so they hire a nanny to watch over the baby when they're not available. However, the couple soon finds themselves unable to discern whether the nanny is just a little strange, or all-together evil. When they realize that she is, in fact, of evil nature, they must fight to restore their child and their family. "The Exorcist" director William Friedkin returns to the horror genre, and he has said that he wants the film to rely on elements of the story rather than the slasher shock-value of modern horror. Universal.

"Blue Steel"—Former horror-queen and "A Fish Called Wanda" star, Jamie Lee Curtis, is a New York police officer who falls for a successful Wall Street commodities broker. He seems the perfect man for Curtis until she discovers that he is a serial killer. Now Curtis must arrest and convict the man she loves. "Blue Steel" also stars Louise Fletcher and is co-produced by "Platoon" director Oliver Stone. MGM/United Artists.

It's The Law

By Gregg F. Relyea, Attorney at Law

Question: I was stopped at a stop sign the other morning on my way to work. Suddenly, without warning, another car hit me from behind. My car was damaged and my neck and back injured. I don't want to get involved in a big legal battle if I can avoid it. Can I negotiate directly with the other driver's insurance company, and if so, how should I go about it and what should I expect from them?

Answer: Yes, you may negotiate directly with the other driver's insurance company if your injuries and property damage are minor. If you sustain more serious injuries, such as a bone fracture, head injury or paralysis, it is usually advisable to seek the advice of an attorney.

Even though an insurance company may be working on your claim, you must not wait longer than one year after your accident to file a lawsuit. A shorter deadline may apply if a defendant is a governmental entity, such as a City or County employee.

Since a settlement is usually final, you should not settle your claim until are your injuries are healed. If your injuries will not stabilize within a year of the accident, you should contact an attorney in order to preserve your rights.

The insurance company will assign a property claims adjuster to handle the claim for damage to your car and a personal injury claims adjuster to handle your claim for physical injuries.

A simple phone call to the other driver's insurance company should start an investigation into your claim. The insurance company will want to look at your car to determine the nature and extent of damage. It is a good idea to take photographs of your car immediately after an accident as proof of its condition resulting from the accident. The insurance company will also request copies of your medical bills and records to confirm your claim for personal injuries. Be sure to keep copies of everything you send the insurance company, as well as notes of telephone conversations you have with them.

If the other driver's insurance company does not handle your claim fairly and promptly, you may have a direct claim against that insurance program for "insurance bad faith." In this type of lawsuit, you are entitled to recover compensation above and beyond damages for your personal injuries and vehicle damage, including compensation for damages incurred as a result of any unreasonable delay in the investigation or handling of your claim. For this type of claim against an insurance company, it is usually advisable to seek the assistance of an attorney.

Royal Heart Ball honors cardiovascular surgeon

Dr. Norman E. Shumway, MD, a pioneer in cardiovascular surgery and one of the founding fathers of heart transplant, has agreed to be the Honorary Chairman for the American Heart Association's Royal Heart Ball scheduled for March 3, 1990 at the U.S. Grant Hotel. Shumway is the Frances and Charles D. Field professor and chairman of the department of cardiovascular surgery at Stanford University School of Medicine. The Royal Heart ball is being held for the first time in San Diego and promises to carry out the tradition of elegance and grace that distinguishes the Heart Ball in cities across America.

"We are delighted that Dr. Shumway has consented to be the Honorary Chairman of San Diego's very first Heart Ball," said chairman Diana Silva. Silva has recently moved to San Diego from Washington, D.C., where she worked on two Heart Ball committees.

Those events each raised over $350,000. The Heart Ball in Phoenix, Arizona, held last fall, raised $200,000, with a number of San Diegans in attendance.

Dallas, Texas holds the oldest and most spectacular Heart Ball, with an international guest list and proceeds over $400,000. Atlanta, Georgia reached $400,000 this past year. Orange County has been holding the Heart Ball for four years. Last year's event featured cabaret entertainment from New York, and the event cleared $100,000.

In San Diego, some of our city's most prominent volunteers have joined together to make this premier event an unforgettable night. It is the first black-tie event to benefit the San Diego chapter of the AHA.

"The American Heart Association in San Diego reaches so many lives," said Silva, "and heart disease is our number one health threat. We are asking the community leaders to join in this once-a-year effort to fight back."

Volunteers are selling individual tickets at $150 per person. Donors and corporate donors are being sought to buy tables of ten.

For further information, please call the American Heart Association at 291-7454.

Elected officials select SANDAG to develop area growth strategies

Culminating a year's work, the Proposition C Blue Ribbon Committee, chaired by San Diego County Supervisor Brian Bilbray, has endorsed SANDAG (San Diego Association of Governments) as the public agency to serve as the "Regional Planning and Growth Management Review Board."

SANDAG directors accepted the committee's recommendation for distribution and approval to the association's member agencies at their October 27th board meeting.

If the region's 18 city councils and the county board of supervisors approve the new designation, SANDAG will develop a regional growth management strategy which would address issues such as quality of life objectives, growth rate policies, phasing and distribution of growth, open space preservation and the siting and financing of regional facilities.

In addition to Supervisor Bilbray, the Blue Ribbon Committee is composed of local mayors and councilmembers from each of the region's 18 cities. The committee's recommendation calls for amendments to SANDAG's existing joint powers agreement, or JPA, to designate the association as the growth review board. Unanimous approval by the 18 cities and county is required to amend SANDAG's joint powers agreement.

SANDAG is a public agency which serves as a technical and informational planning resource for the region's 18 incorporated cities and the county government, who collectively are the 'association of governments.'

SANDAG is governed by a

Board of Directors composed of mayors, councilmembers and a county supervisor from each of the region's 19 local governments. SANDAG's monthly board meetings provide a public forum and decision point for significant regional issues such as transportation, environmental management, housing, open space, energy, economic development and criminal justice.

Helix High receives video equipment from Cox Cable and arts network

Cox Cable San Diego joined with the Arts & Entertainment Cable Network (A&E) to introduce A&E's National Cable Television Library Program to the Helix High School Library recently.

"Cox Cable is pleased to be an active partner with A&E in their national library program," said Robert G. McRann, Senior Vice President and General Manager of Cox Cable San Diego. "We are stepping up our commitment to helping the community now and throughout the 1990's through active, meaningful participation. A&E's library program is a good example of this commitment in action."

As part of the national library program, Cox Cable and A&E presented a collection of A&E program videotapes and a complete RCA VCR/television monitor system to Helix High School Library recently. A selection of books based on A&E programs, which accompanied the tapes and monitor system, were also donated. In addition, McRann announced that Cox Cable is planning a major construction project to provide Helix High School with cable services.

"Helix High School is very pleased to be a recipient of the National Cable Television Library Program," said Gerry Stanley, special education department head, Helix High School. "The video equipment will be used by the entire school and will also be instrumental in teaching our hearing impaired students," he added. "By working together, Cox and A&E demonstrate how cable operators and cable networks can use their resources to support local communities."

Baha'is organize hurricane benefit

To aid the victims of Hurricane Hugo, Baha'is throughout San Diego County have organized an effort to collect non-perishable food, blankets, towels, and kitchen and eating utensils. The goal for the drive is to collect five tons of goods which will be shipped by truck to an emergency shelter located in the central part of South Carolina. While the Red Cross has been collecting monetary donations to aid the earthquake victims of Northern California, the Baha'is feel that the project they are sponsoring is a good opportunity to those citizens who prefer to contribute goods to help people in need. Members from the East County Baha'i communities will be receiving donations of goods from the public on Sunday, November 12th from 10AM until 4 PM at the La Mesa City Hall parking lot at 8130 Allison Avenue. Scott Patton and Marcia Baltgalvis, both Baha'is from La Mesa, are coordinators for this project. Please feel free to call Scott at 464-7692 or Marcia at 589-5239 for more details.

Holiday tradition again at Horton Plaza

Sights and sounds of the approaching holiday season will abound during "Light Up The Night" at Horton Plaza on Friday, November 17. Fast becoming a San Diego tradition, the annual benefit concert sponsored by Horton Plaza and the Community Service Center for the Disabled (CSCD) is hosted this year by Pat Brown and Dave Hood of PM Magazine.

Beginning at 6:30 p.m., favorite holiday music will be provided by The Glory Ringers, the internationally-renowned Foothill United Methodist Church Bell Ringers under the direction of Carol Payton; St. Paul's Cathedral Combine Boys and Men Choristers led by Edgar Billups; the San Diego County Combined Salvation Army Band directed by Charles Hansen. A special candle lighting ceremony will follow.

Open to the public, this event attracts thousands to the foot of the Plaza's grand staircase where they can enjoy free entertainment, holiday refreshments and, at 8 p.m., the grand arrival of Saint Nicholas and the Snow Princess.

A voluntary donation of $3.00 to light a candle will benefit CSCD. An organization run by and for disabled persons, CSCD provides job placement, housing assistance, peer counseling and other assistance to some of the more than one-quarter million community members in need in San Diego. Other sponsors for "Light Up The Night" include First Capital Life Insurance, KJOY Radio, Arthur Anderson Company, Southern California Edison, Designcorp and Kaiser Permanente.

Festivities will continue Friday night with the "After The Light Party" at the U.S. Grant Hotel on Broadway from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. For a small donation (proceeds to CSCD), San Diegans will rock to live music from the popular rock group, "Class Action," view works by talented local artists, take advantage of a lavish buffet and a no-host bar.

Helix stages Up The Down Staircase

By Janice Durick

The scene opens; students push their way through noisy, crowded halls, yelling to each other over the din. Boys cluster around attractive girls wearing hot pink stretch pants, and exasperated teachers try vainly to control overly boisterous classrooms.

This scene is from the theme production now going on at the Helix Little Theater, and what could be more familiar: The play, titled Up The Down Staircase, is set in the dirty, chaotic world of Calvin Coolidge High School in New York city.

The plot is centered around a recent college graduate teaching her first year there. Sylvia, the newcomer (played by Jolie Mounts), is young, intelligent, fresh-faced and gives a whole new meaning to the word "green." Despite her energetic attitude, Sylvia becomes overwhelmed by a large number of students and situations that college didn't prepare her for. Salvation comes in the form of Bea Shachter (played by Jessica McNeil), an older, more experienced teacher, who warns the younger one about the evils that may befall her ("Better you should have taken karate.")

Every story has a love interest, and this one has an incredible ego. Paul Barringer (played by Eric Curtis) is the dashing, intelligent, yet shallow young writer who works as a teacher while he waits for his novel to be published.

Among the cast of faculty are Charlotte Wold, the distant school nurse (played by Jennifer Poole); Mr. McHabe, the strict and establishment-oriented vice-principal (played by Hoa Dao); and Dr. Clarke, the omnipotent yet little seen principal (played by Derek Henderson).

It is often said that there are no small parts, only small actors. This saying proves true, because although they don't have many lines, the real stars of the show are the various students of Calvin Coolidge. One of Sylvia's biggest problems is the rebellious but intelligent Joe Ferrone, (played by Pat Gallandt), who seems to be as frustrated with the school system as she is.

Another student is Alice Blake (played by Janice Durick), a dreamily romantic girl who sets her affections on her English teacher, Paul Barringer.

"Auditions went really well," said Ruth Rivera, drama instructor. "I chose the play because I thought it would be a lot of fun, not only to perform, but to produce. I wanted to get as many people involved as possible, and with a total of 30 parts, Up The Down Staircase accomplished that," she added.

Rivera said tentative dates for the play are Dec 8 and 9, and Dec. 13 and 15.

College opera to present Carmen

The Grossmont College Opera Theater will present a full production of the Opera Carmen by George Bizet with Orchestra.

Performances are November 17 and 18 at 8:00 p.m. and November 19 at 3:30 p.m. at the East County Performing Arts Center in El Cajon. Cost of tickets are: $8.00 General Admission and $6.00 for Seniors, Students and Children.

This production will be presented in English, so bring the whole family and come and enjoy the most famous melodies in Opera.
